Home Again.—The Reception Given by the Members of the hear to Judge Allison.—Last evening the Foyer of the new Horticultural Hall was the scene of a brilliant entertainment tendered by the members of the bar to the Hos. Joseph Allison, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, who has just arrived at home after a sojourn abroad of several months, in quest of health and pleasure. The apartiment in which the babquet was given was tastefully decorated with the national ensign, and presented a very attractive appearance. In the centre of the adornments hung a large life like photograph of the guest of the evening, surmounted by the words "Welcome Home." Seats were arranged at the table for about one hundred and twenty-five, nearly all of whom were members of the bar. All of Judge Allison's colleagues on the bench of the Court of Common Pleas were present, together with the most prominent members of the bar of Pulladeiphia. At either side of Judge Allison sat Ell K. Price, Rsq., and Joseph A. Clay, Esq.

The party sat down at half-past 8 o'clock, and after the removal of the cleth, Judge Allison was presented to the company by Mr. Clay, who took coasion to say that those present were assembled as a portion of the friends of Judge Allison, to give him a hearty welcome home; and their appreciation of his worth was not in the less diminished by his absence in foreign lands. He extended to him the warm congratulations of all his numerous friends on his safe return.

worth was not in the least diminished by his absence in fursign lands. He extended to him the warm congratulations of all his numerous friends on his asterium.

When his Honor rose to reply he was greeted with hearty applause. He said that such a scene as the one before him he was unaccustomed to, and such a one as it had never before been his good fortune to experience. He contrasted his present situation with ene that took place some years since, on which occasion he had been travelling through the West, and returning, passed through Harrisburg, the city of his birth. On arriving there he looked out on those assembled about the depot, and among some hundred and fifty persons who were present he naturally expected to see some familiar faces. Such was not the case, however, and he felt like a perfect stranger, even in the city of his birth. The present was the second occasion on which he had returned home after a long absence, and those present could readily imagine his feelings at the warm and entbusiastic reception that greeted him. Instead of unfamiliar faces, he was met by kind and carnest friends, and their welcome will be remembered while life lasis. He found himself surrounded by those with whom he has held social and professional intercourse for iwenty-two years, and ought be not to say in sincerity and truth that he felt himself the proudest and happiest of men. The speaker said, where can more intelligent men, or men of those high traits of character that command the respect of men be found, than among those who surrounded him and cheered him with dear words of welcome? He tendered one and all his most sincere and heartfelt thanks.

The Judge then adverted to his European trip. The visit was not entirely one of pleasure, for it was known to most of those present that for fifteen or sixteen years he had been permitted to occupy the position he did in his profession, and his labors gave him warning that, after a long and ceaseless service, his health was falling. He therefore determined to go to Europe, he passed through the streets. He was protected by bayonets, but had little hold on the hearts of the people.

From Paris the speaker went to Brussels and was struck with the dudiness of that city, as compared with the former. From Brussels he went to Astwerp, and he spoke in glowing terms of the splendid pictures by Rubens to be seen there. The Hague he found to be the most charming pisce in that part of Europe. Rotterdam, Amsterdam, and all parts of Holland (the land rescued from the ocean) were visited, and from there he proceeded to Cologne, once a city of considerable importance, but now under the thumb of the master of Europe. Bismark.

From Cologne he proceeded up the Rhine, a river that cannot compare in point of scenic beauty with our own majestic North river. Baden-Baden Homburg, and Wels Baden were visited, and then the tour of Switzerland was made. Roaming through delightful Switzerland was made. Roaming through delightful Switzerland the speaker met with Berestad, the great American artist and painter of the "Ko-semite Valley." He thought that, for natural grantieur, the scenery of Switzerland could not compare with the Rocky Mountain region of America. The speaker thought the time is fast approaching when Europeans now go to Europe. A number of other places were visited by the Judge closed by saying that America ancears.

The Judge closed by saying that America appears to be the only land which possesses the basis of substantial prosperity and endurance. Here the land belongs to the people who live upon it: they own their farms, homes, and barns. They are their own, and are something to live for, fight for, and even die for. What has the poor European peasant to live for, com-see something to live for, fight for, and even die for. What has the poor European peasant to live for, compared with the free American citizen?

Judge Allison then resumed his seat, amid much applause, and Mr. Clay preposed for a toast "The Court of Common Pleas." The sentiment was appropriately responded to by Judge Ludlow, who reterred to lis great antiquity, and made many happy allusions to the great men who had adorned it in past times, closing his remarks with a grateful tribute to the abilities and character of Judge Allison.

The Philadelphia Bar," the next toast, was admirably responded to by the Hon. Benjamin H. Brewster, Attorney-General of the State.

Judge Pierce responded in fine style to the next toast, "The Integrity of the Bench the Bulwark of its safety," while Judge Brewster made a neat speech in response to "The Comity of the Bench and Bar." The last toast of the evening was "Social Festivities," to which Col. Jas. Page replied in characteristicremarks, which set the table in a roar. The ceremonies and amenities of the evening were brought to a close by Colonel Page's happy rendition of "The Crulakeen Lawn."

RELIGIOUS MATTERS .- At half-past 3 o'clock Religious Matters.—At half-past 3 o'clock this afternoon, the ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new Protestant Episcopal Church of St Jolin the Evangelist will take piace, at the corner of Third and Reed streets, the site of the fine old mansion house which was recently demolished. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons and evenings of this week.

Next Thursday, the sist instant, will be three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Reformation, and will be duly celebrated in this city. The Jublies services commemorating this event will be held in "St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church." Spring Garden, above Thirtseath street. Church service in the morning at 10% o'clock, and a grand Sunday School celebration in the evening at 7% o'clock. This anniversary will prove one of the most interesting that has yet taken place in our city. The event which it signalizes is one which to all, and the religious community especially, is of deep interest. The hearers will learn of those darkest days when the Church was in its most trying hours, which alterwards were effaced by the light of ever-brightening triumph. St. Mark's Church will be beautifully decorated. Special instrumental and vocal music is to constitute a prominent feature of the services. All should go to see and hear.

Young Men's Christian Association .- The regular Monthly Meeting took place last night. Pete P. Simons, Esq., presiding. After brief religious exer-cises, the minutes of the previous meeting were read which showed the Society to be in a flourishing condiwhich showed the society to be in a nourisating colum-tion, and doing great good among young men. The Rev. William T. Eva was then introduced, who read an excellent essay on "The Business of Life to be Chosen on Christian Principles." The essay was re-ceived with applause, after which a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Eva. An animated discussion then followed, in which a number of members par-terpated. The President then announced that the judge of the election for officers and managers to then followed, in which a number of memoers parcipated. The President then announced that the judge of the election for officers and managers to serve the ensuing year was ready to report. (For list of officers elected see third page.) This election was the most spirited one in several years, and the result was received by the large audience of young men with evident satisfaction. One hundred and twenty-one vung men were then proposed and elected members.
The thirteenth anniversary of the Association was announced to take place in Horticultural Hall November 14. Rev. Newman Hall, of London, Rev.
Publiks Brooks, and others, are the speakers. After singing and prayer, the exercises closed with the beneciction by Bev. Mr. Eva.

A COLORED CONFISCATOR .- No sooner had A Colored Confiscator,—No sooner had the domestics hung out the large washing in the yard of Mr. John H. Williams, at No 186 S. Tenth street, and retired to the kitchen, than the black face and the long body of Charles Gibson appeared above the wall. Surveying the scene with malicious eye, and no doubt contemplating the profits which would accrue from an immediate and sudden confiscation, he slipped over, and in a trice cleared the line of every vestige of the washing, and incontinently left, Giorying in his booty, he was swiftly making his way to a pawnbroker's shop, when Officer Dehaven clapped hands and, finally, handouffa upon him, and brought him to the Central Station, where he remains for a hearing.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF .- The best of men will MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.—The best of men will err: some from a nack of wise forethought, others by the many of the many was irapired by the latter to various deeds of mischief. He stepped into a house at Marshall and Jefferson atreets, and waylaid everything furniture way displaced and broken, and animated heads became blue. He assaulted, it is said, the proprietor of the catabilishment, and only ceased when he was arrested. Alderway Frich held him in $500 ball to answer.

The genus of the collection, however, are the specimens of American colons which has for some years past been prevalent. Among these specimens are many "proof set," omplete and in the most perfect state of preservation.

The "proof set," of the silver colonage of 1827 is said to exist in no other collection. Many others are "underculated," which renders them all the more rare and valuable. The specimens of American contains the MoCoy" sale, 3160, and in the "Seavey" sale, 3169, the half-cent of 1847 also bringing the same price, 1967, the half-cent of 1847 also bringing the same price, 1967, the half-cent of 1867, and the reason.

As the catalogue, according to the usual custom, commences with the spectures of amaliest value, the germs of rarity and great value being reserved for the closing hours, the attendance last evening was not as large, nor the competition as earnest, as it will be at a subsequent period during the progress of the sale. At the beginning of the sale, certain French and Roman coins, of which many duplicates are in existence, were offered; but no very extravagant prices were realized. A Roman Acs, weighing nine and one half ounces avoirdupois, brought $16. A Quadrons, the fourth of an Acs, was sold for $3, and another of like style and value brought only $7. A Sextoms commanded $2.50; an Uncia, or one ounce piece was bought for $2, and a Triens brought $425. Of the Roman Imperial coins, many were void for very low prices, varying from a few cen.s to $7.

Later in the evening several specimens of the earlier English coinages were presented, realizing fair but by no means extravagant prices. The sale will be continued this evening, and as some of the choicest specimens of English coinage will be reached, a larger attendance and a brisker competition are anticipated. It is to be greatly regretted that some one of the learned sciettes of this city did not possess the spirit and means for purchasing the valuable collection of Mr. M ckley as a whole, in order that it might have been kept forever in the city in which it was originally made.

EXONERATED FROM ALL BLAME. - Some time EXONERATED FROM ALL BLAME,—Some time ago a sad affair occurred in Mauch Chunk. A boy named Charles Wiger and his employer went out gunning. Young Wiser was preparing to fire, when his employer slipped suddenly before the gun, received its charge of buckshot in the breast, and was killed almost instantly. The Coroner's jury exonerated him from all blame; but the boys about Mauch Chunk, it is said, threatered to kill Wiser for wilfully murdering his employer, and to save almost from injury he had to go to Nicetown, where his mother resides. Here he was arrested and held by Alderman Thomas in 2000 ball, until the true facts of the case were known, when he was set at liberty.

A VALOROUS PROCEEDING .- For a long time A VALOROUS PROCERDING.—For a long time did John Valliant, a chivalric knight, regard with watchful and malicious eye the inmates of a modern harem at beventh and Baker streets. Evil spirits, bottled and ethereal, had roused his violence to such a height that last night be rushed into the place, and laying hand on one of the largest females, so alleged, did beat, bruise, and maltreat her without any definite cause, barring personal spite. She resisted, and he seized an oyster knife and managed to cut her in a half-dozen places, but not seriously. The whole household, capped with a policeman, pounced upon this offender, and he was arrested, and committed to prison by Alderman Tittermary.

THE CHOLERA AT THE NAVY YARD-ONLY THE CHOLERA AT THE NAVY TARD—UNLY
ONE DEATH SINGE SUNDAY.—The epidemic on board the United States man-of-war Sassacus, lying off the Navy Yard, has almost run its destructive course; there being but one death reported since Sunday afternoon, that of Charles Diddier, a landsman, who died at 8 o'clock this morning—a total of thirty since the outbreak of the disease ten days ago. The remainder of the men on the sick list, as published by us yesterday—fourteen in number—were doing quite we'l this morning, and it is thought that all, or nearly all, of them will uitimately recover.

A Double Charge.—John Carney, being the owner in fee-simple of a lager beer house and whisky cellar at Gaffney alley and Fitzwater street, became curiously facetlous and violent. Not only on Sunday last did he bid open defiance to our Sunday liquor law, but did assault peaceable citizens who happened to pass his place without stepping in. One person who suffered from his violence sought redress, and found it at Alderman Tittermary's office, and Carney now rests from his labors in a Moyamensing cell.

RECKLESS DRIVING .- Dr. C. E. Kamerly was RECKLESS DRIVING.—Dr. C. B. Kalnerly was driving his carriage in the neighborhood of Fifth and Callowhill streets yesterday morning, when an individual named George Rotherson, in a large vehicle, and urging his horse at its highest speed, came rushing along, amashed into the Doctor's carriage, then yeared off and went headlong down the street. He was brought to at Fifth and Green streets. Alderman Toland committed him. The Doctor's vehicle sustained some damage.

The disbursements during the year were of various classes, as follows:—

Regular bi-monthly payments to troops in service; final payments to volunteers mustered out and disbanded; payment of Treasury certificates issued by the Second Auditor for bounties and for arroars; to heirs of deceased officers and soldiers; payment by the division of referred claims of bounties and other and the control of the arrears to living claimants, which may be thus sum-..$20,078,855

.$42,756,457 At the date of my last annual report there were in this department.—Paymasters of the old establishment, 22: additional paymasters, 58. Total 83. There were subsequently appointed in the establishment the complement (thirty-five) authorized by the act to increase and fix the military peace establishment, approved July 23, 1866, making of regular paymasters created and now in service, 68. Reduction of additional paymasters during the fiscal year, 57; leaving still in service 21. Total of both classes now in service, 51.

Law able now to repeat the assurance of my last

I am able now to repeat the assurance of my last I am able now to repeat the assurance of my last annual report, that there has occurred no serious falure or omission is the performance of the labori-cus duties devolving upon the officers of this Depart-ment. They have exhibited, especially those serving on the frontiers, a degree of courage, energy, zeal, and probity most commendable and praiseworthy.

ADDITIONAL BOUNTIES.

The entire remainder—291.888—are awaiting replies from the Second Auditor of the Treasury (into whose custody the war rolls have all passed) to inquiries forwarded to his office for information indispensable to the payments before closing them out.

The Auditor has been able to supply these answers on acetracts from the rolls at the rate of only twolve to infecen thousand cases per mouth, and of course, the work in this office is limited by that supply. If it were other wise, or were practicable for the Auditor on his part to increase the supply, the payments could be expedited in the proportion of such increase. It is believed that with the present capacity of the division of referred claims, with its perfected facilities and admirable management under the supervision of cases could be paid and disposed of, and the whole be compreted within another year from the present date. As a specific committee; has been organised by the House of Representatives to make is, ulry and investigation of this matter and report whit means, if any can be devised to expedite the floyal payment of the additional bounties, I retrain trom suggestions on the subject.

The total of 407.357 applications received, acknowledged, recorded, and examined and of them, 105,778 fully sattled, with an expenditure of $233,797, and this chiefly within a period of eight months, together with $1,000 claims for ordinary bounty and arrears of pay, with a further expenditure of $3,334,303, making an aggregate of nearly $1,000,000 ascertained and transmitted in small amounts to the numerous individual claimants within a less period than one full year. These racts and figures demonstrate the value and magnitude of the labor performed by the Division of Referred Claims.

They are the results made possible only through the exercise of careful industry, unsurpassed pains, and application. Furthermore, it is most sratifying to know and to state that there has not been ascertained a single instance of delinquency or wrong on the part of any officers of the division; nothing in the whole extent of their perplexing labors affecting injuriously the rights or interests of claimants or of the Government. The services of all, chief and subordinate, have been rendered with singular fidelity and ability, entitling them to the highest commandation.
